

South Africa is seen as a catalyst for reform in African politics and the engine for the continent's economic take-off.

We have the infrastructure, now we must ensure that we keep our knowledge base. South Africa must deal with its problems, develop strategies to curb crime as well as deal with the health issues which plague our nation.

This will guarantee that our best do not leave for greener pastures. There must come a time in this nation's transformation when the pain subsides and the benefits emerge, when optimism sings the virtue of change and the sheer momentum of effort finally fulfils the prophecy of success. Like a well cultivated garden, we await the generous crop. South Africa, after all, has what it takes to lead the continent and perhaps the world.

"I dream of the realisation of the unity of Africa, whereby its leaders combine in their efforts to solve the problems of this continent. I dream of our vast deserts, of our forests, of all our great wildernesses."
